

Professor Bumblebunce

Usually lectures at Oxford University however he is travelling the world looking for new species. He is currently in the Galapagos islands researching The Giant Tortoise, which is at present on the endangered species list.

Biology is the natural science that studies life and living organisms, including their physical structure, development and evolution.

- Animals and their habitats
- Humans
 - Skeletons
 - Teeth
 - Digestion
 - Reproduction
 - Circulatory system
- Plants
- Micro organisms
- Evolution and inheritance

You can contact Professor Bumblebunce on his email if you have any questions about Biology and he will try and help you.

professorbumblebunceou@yahoo.com

